

Spelling

BLANK.

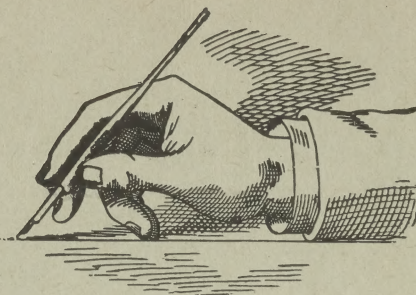

1891

PROPERTY OF

Lyman Sullens,

Princeton, N. J.

Sept. 30, 1904 Oregon.

This Spelling Blank is so ruled that short quotations may be written at the beginning of each lesson, as in the model on the first page, or long dictation exercises for lessons, as in the model on the last page; or, it may be used for writing twenty-word lessons without the short or long dictation exercises.

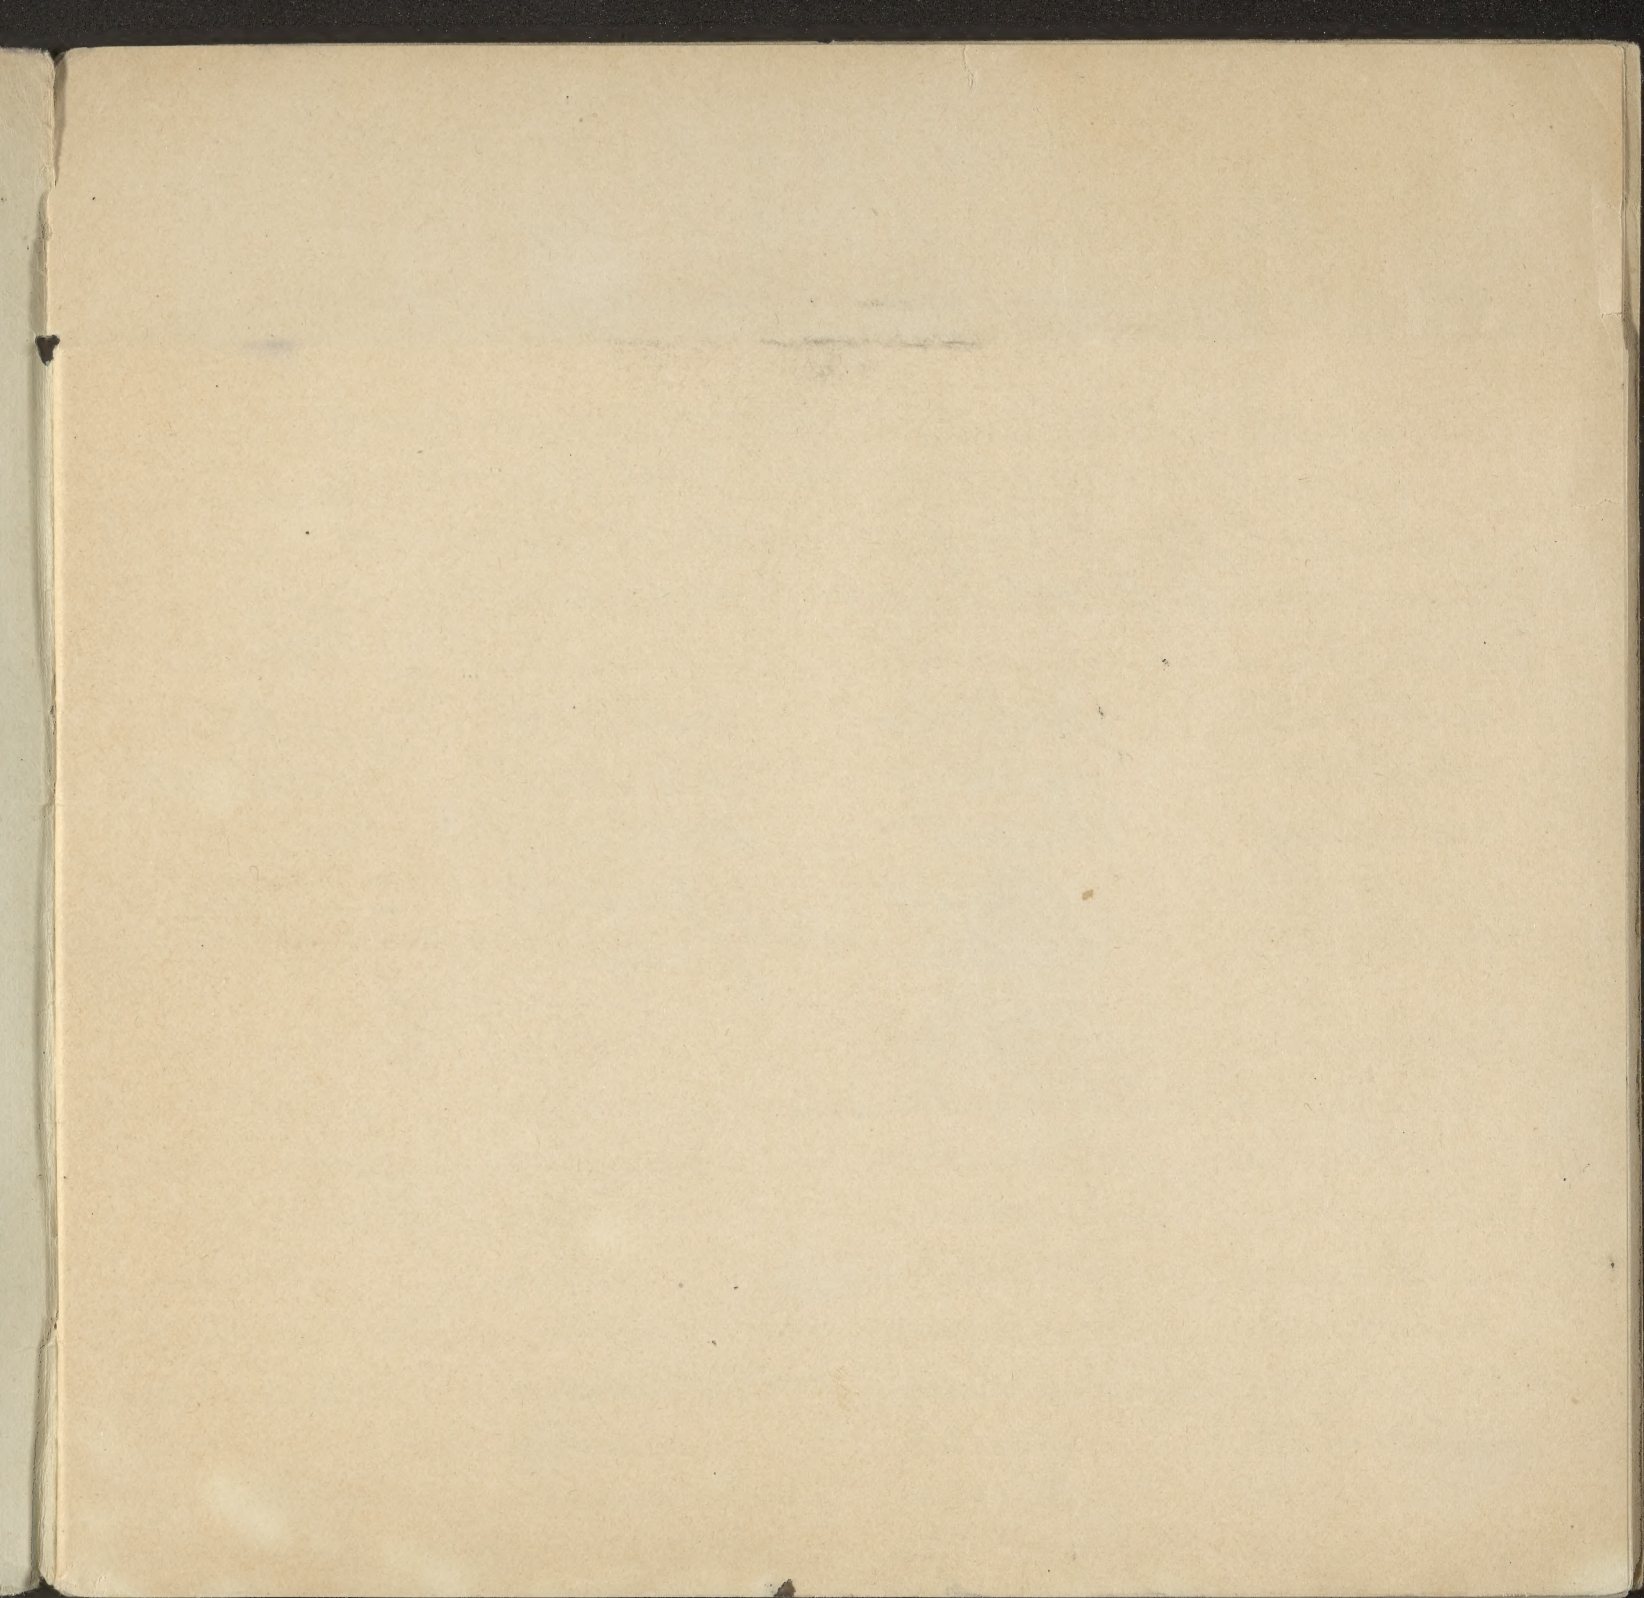

The Model Lessons are in a style of writing that the student may endeavor to acquire, and he should often refer to the sets of capital and small letters at the head of the pages.

The Arrangement of this blank has been with a view not only to make the spelling lesson interesting and profitable, but also a great aid to the student in acquiring a superior style of penmanship.

Misspelled Words in the twenty-word lessons may be indicated by placing a check mark (✓) on the ruled line at the left of the words, and in the dictation exercises by underlining the words.

SUGGESTIONS.

1. The words and dictation exercises should be written carefully, with ink, and thus the spelling lesson will prove excellent practice in penmanship as well.
2. By writing one lesson only on a page, the first time through the book, a student may more readily judge of his improvement in writing, by comparison.
3. If the dictation exercises be omitted, the twenty-word lessons may be written as in the model lesson, or perpendicularly in columns, at the option of the teacher.
4. The students should all arrange their lessons in the same way, as directed by the teacher.
5. In grading, 100 per cent. may be given if the lesson be written without errors, and 5 per cent. deducted for each mistake.
6. Of the twenty-word lessons, only proper nouns (as "Howard" and "Methodist" in the model lesson) should begin with capitals. A failure to cross a i or dot an i should be counted an error.
7. In small schools, the teacher or a student may review the lesson, and in large classes the pupils exchange books and each correct the other's work while the teacher reads.
8. The per centage due in spelling may be written opposite each lesson in the narrow column at the left edge of the page, and under it, the grade in penmanship.
9. The blanks should be distributed at the beginning of each lesson and collected at its close.

True worth is in being, not seeming
In doing each day that goes by
Some little good - not in dreaming
Of great things to do by and by.

I do not object to classical learning; far from it, but I would not have it exclude the living present.

Therefore I welcome the Business College in the form it has taken in the United States, because it meets an acknowledged want, by affording to young people of only common scholastic attainments, and even to the classes that graduate from Harvard and Yale, an opportunity to learn important and indispensable lessons before they go out into the business of life.
